YOUR CPD REQUIREMENTS AS A LEGAL PRACTITIONER

The Legal Profession Rules require that all legal practitioners who hold a current practising certificate in Queensland must, during each CPD year (01 April to 31 March) complete mandatory continuing legal education (continuing professional development), unless they qualify for an exemption, by completing a course of education which satisfies the following requirements:

- The course must be relevant to a practitioner's immediate or long term needs in relation to the practitioner's professional development and to the practice of law
- The course must have an aggregate value of ten (10) CPD units (generally they are required to complete 10 units)
- The course must include at least one (1) CPD unit in each of the following fields: - Practical Legal Ethics - Practice Management and Business Skills - Professional Skills
- A practitioner's engagement in a course of continuing legal education which satisfies the requirements, will entitle the practitioner to one (1) CPD unit for each hour of participation in the course
- CPD units accrued in the period 1 January to 31 March, in any year, may be carried forward into the following CPD year but can only be counted in one CPD year

DECISION MAKING AND REASON WRITING

THURSDAY 26 MARCH 2015 | 9.00AM TO 1.15PM | $405

Our Annual Decision Making and Reason Writing Seminar will take a different approach, when considering the time honoured question of "How best to structure and communicate decisions that are correct and preferable"? Our workshop discussion will consider this question using, by way of example, decisions that have and have not worked and looking to see what we can learn to apply to our decisions. In addition, we will explore other obstacles for the decision maker, by considering the impact of stereotyping in making decisions and how the potential for cross cultural issues and bias issues to impact decisions.

Costs 101 for Lawyers
Getting paid for the work we do (and also maximising our client's party/ party recovery on costs) is an essential part of staying in practice and keeping the doors open and yet many lawyers have a tendency to put anything to do with costs into the "too hard" basket. Hopefully after attending this workshop you won't be one of them. Examine:
- Effective time recording: Alternative fee agreements may be the darling of the media but good time recording can be a lawyer's best friend, even if you use fixed fee cost agreements
- Managing client expectations when it comes to costs. Why you need to be prepared to have the hard conversations with your client early and how to have those conversations
- How to meet your obligations in respect of costs and costs disclosure under the Legal Profession Act 2007?
- The age old question: "My client is refusing to pay me, what are my options?"

» Presented by Jacqueline Highfield, Managing Solicitor, DGT Costs Lawyers

Practical Legal Ethics

Managing Complaints
Dealing with complaints is an inevitable part of any business. Handled proactively in a systemic fashion, client complaints can be a source of useful information for you and your practice. Expectations can be managed and relationships can be maintained or at least ended with a minimum of acrimony, with your brand intact. Conversely, if mismanaged, complaints can be stressful for all concerned, damage reputations, absorb unnecessary time and resources, increase the risk of a Legal Services Commission complaint, a law claim or even have career ending consequences.

This session will provide you and your practice with the tools to enable you to minimise complaints and proactively and efficiently deal with clients when complaints do arise.
